Located next to the the beach like many of the seaside towns along the Costa del Sol coastline, Estepona has evolved from its humble origins into a bustling, vibrant town with the modern day infrastructure that European residents demand.

Estepona marina is filled with great places to eat and there's an artisan market held weekly. There's an array of shops, bars and restaurants in the whitewashed town centre that is characterized by narrow flower filled whitewashed streets culminating in Flores Square. One80 Residences is ideally located in the South West of Estepona and boasts exceptional views of the Mediterranean Sea as well as being within walking distance of amenities including supermarkets, restaurants, leisure centres and the beach.

With a wealth of sport and leisure activities available locally including sailing, water sports, tennis and horse riding, you'll also find several championship golf courses nearby. The Costa del Sol

The Costa del Sol ‘sunshine coast’ is the only European destination to boast over 300 days of sunshine every year. The area has been a holiday hot spot since the 1950s when it became the playground of the rich and famous as a glamorous alternative to St. Tropez. Today the celebrities, holiday makers and expats can enjoy the best of all worlds; a laid back Andalucian lifestyle under the azure sky of the Mediterranean, plus the added benefit of modern communications, excellent international travel links, state of the art hospitals, sandy beaches, cosmopolitan towns, international cuisine, nightlife and shopping and of course the famed Spanish hospitality. It also boasts some of the most sought after real estate in the world.
